

Observation Packet

With a chaperone, each child/group will observe the ducks, the river otters, Jester the male and Delta the female, and the monkeys in the Exotic Animal House.

You can observe the animals in any order and search for the scavenger hunt animals in between.

The chaperone can record the group's observations or answers.

Chaperones should read the animal signs out loud and encourage the children to read with you. Point to familiar words and look for answers together. Don't worry if you cannot find all of the scavenger hunt answers. Teaching, reading, predicting, talking, pointing, sharing, observing, etc are more important than getting all the blanks filled in.

All observers in your group should sign their name below, including adults.

At 1:15 PM we all must meet at the zoo entrance to count the children and the chaperones before we board our bus to go back to school.

Please do not wait at the bus!

We will be counting people at the main entrance.

You may leave blank what your group does not have time to finish.

At the end of our trip, please give this packet to a teacher or aide before we leave the zoo.
